For instance, suppose we should construct the graph of (x2 + l) independently. For any value of x, the point representing (a + 1) would be one unit higher than the point representing x2; thus the graph of (z2 + l) would be the graph of x2 raised one unit. We can, however, get the same effect more easily by leaving the graph where it is and lowering the rr-axis one unit. In the same way, the graph of (x2--2) can be obtained from the graph of x2 by raising the z-axis two units. Again, suppose we should construct the graph of (z+1)2; in the table of values of x and (rr + 1)2, we should have the same set of values for (z+1)2 that we had for x2, except that the corresponding value of...
