Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Memorial: In Support of the Nomination of the Name of Sir William Pepperrell, to Be Inscribed in the Hall of Fame for Great Americans The rules for elections to the Hall of Fame provide for fifteen classes and require a selection according to the definition of famous in the new English Dictionary: The condition of being much talked about, chiefly in a good sense, or reputation from great achievements. There is also provision, for more justly famous, indicating that there may be a candidate who would be eligible for selection, but who is not so especially eligible as to be selected as one of the American men who are in any one year to be chosen. It may therefore follow that a candidate of one season should fail of election because it is thought that other candidates are more justly famous. Hence it has frequently happened in the history of nominations for the Hall of Fame that the candidate for one year who has elected in a subsequent season. In 1910 it appears from the...
