Excerpt: .of testaments, and donation of benefices, as more amply in his signature is expressed. But this archbishop--the unfortunate Hamilton, who a few years afterwards finished his course on the gibbet--was a papist as well as a bishop. The same assembly did not hesitate to send an affectionate letter, drawn up by Knox, to their brethren, the bishops and pastors of England, requesting them, indeed, to deal gently with those of their number who objected to the use of the canonical habits, but not absolutely denying the lawfulness of the said apparel, and admitting that the question as to whether it was to be accounted among things indifferent appeared to be agitated with greater vehemence by both parties in the English church than they could themselves approve of. A few years after they would not have gone so far in the way of concession...
